What is InSEA?

The International Society of Education through Art (InSEA) is a worldwide society of art educators concerned with education through art. Art educators from all sectors are welcome, from early to higher education, museums or community-based arts. Members work together to share experience, improve practice and strengthen the position of art in all areas of education. InSEA is well established as an international community dedicated to advocacy and promoting research and praxis in art education providing a worldwide networking platform for members. Join us at: www.insea.org.

What do members receive?

Only InSEA members enjoy access to:

- Free access to the on-line International Journal for Education through Art (IJEtA), an internationally renowned journal on research and issues in art education (members are also entitled to 50% discount on the price of hard copies of the journal).
- All areas of the website including rich advocacy, praxis and research blogs, with valuable networking possibilities, capable of distributing information widely and providing interactive forums in different languages.
- Access to a fully searchable membership portal where members can find art educators from all around the world. Many InSEA members have developed collaborations and educational interchanges with other InSEA members using this members-only facility.
- A newsletter. With the most up-to-date information about art education news and in which InSEA members can promote events and share information.
